Charlottesville-Albemarle SPCA is at capacity for adult dogs, which means every kennel at the shelter is occupied. We want to find the animals currently in the SPCA's care loving homes...where they belong. And we want to be able to provide transfer and rescue services

"Through adoption, one animal finds a loving home and space is created for another animal in need of a second chance," said Sue Friedman, Interim Executive Director of the Charlottesville-Albemarle SPCA. "We know this community wants CASPCA to provide rescue and transport services to animals in need. When we are full, we must decline these opportunities. We need YOUR HELP to provide that second chance to deserving animals...a chance to be adopted by you."

The SPCA is open for walk-in appointments Tuesday through Thursday from 12-4 pm and Friday through Sunday from 12-6PM. Appointments can also be scheduled by emailing adoptions@caspca.org.

All dogs currently available for adoption can be found here.
